2004. Hardcover. Book Condition: New. 290 Study of child psychology is not a childs play. It requires more patience, understanding and sensitivity than the study of adults behaviour of childs psychology like heredity, environment and acquired traits in a classroom and playground. Needless to say media influence is stronger than any other factor. All these require empirical as well personalized studies for experimentation and inferences for treatment and course correction. This book provides a systematic framework to study and teach this crucial subject.
